LIFELIKE EXHIBITS AND POSTERS FEATURES OF HEALTH EXPOSITION BEGUN TODAY AT CENTRAL SCHOOL

Few Children Examined This Morning —Red Cross Assistants Escort Visitors to Booths and Various Exhibits

MAJOR PORTION OF CREDIT FOR WORK GOES TO MISS MARX

Hundreds of visitors, attended the Health Exhibit which was opened at the central school building today. Almost the entire first floor of the building is taken up with the exhibits which are formed of myriads of posters and miniature scenes from real life.

Examination of children began this morning though not many parents have brought their babies yet. Only a few were examined this morning. Miss Wilhelmine Marx and a number of assistants were kept busy conducting the visitors to the various exhibits. The exhibits themselves need no explanation for they have all been done in a very able and true to life manner.

Little girls dressed in Red Cross uniforms sat at the tables and issued health booklets to visitors as they passed. This literature which has been furnished mainly by the Red Cross covers nearly every phase of the subjects of health and sanitation. It is issued free to visitors.

One of the outstanding exhibits which occupies an entire room in the building is the House of Health and the stations one must pass through to reach it. The journey begins at the ticket window where signs are posted that the "Coffee Express," "Tea Accommodation" and "Midnight Owl" trains have been eliminated.

A miniature passenger train with several coaches is on the tracks. The stations are all made of the articles from which they are named. They include: Egg Junction, Play Meadow, Milky Way, enclosed by two rows of bottles of milk, Hotsoup Springs, Cocoa Crossing, Bookland, Long Sleep Mountain, Drinkwater and Bathtubville.

Prohibition Exhibit

The house itself stands in the center of the exhibit and is a model of neatness and sanitation. It is covered with pictures of vegetables and various articles of food which are recommended for health.

A very impressive exhibit deploring the evil effects of whiskey is shown in another room. A real still arranged as in actual operation is there, by which is standing Satan, hideous in his vestments of red. At a table are figures of two men, dressed in tatters, and having horribly red and bloated features. Glasses and liquor are before them and they are in the act of drinking. A woman, clothed in rags and holding an emaciated child in her arms is represented as the logical result of the first part of the scene.

The deadly house fly was attacked by the exhibits and posters. An exhibit occupying a side of a room traces the daily itinerary of the pest. The journey begins at the stable and includes the unsanitary home where the fly is allowed to crawl over the food. He is foiled at every point at the sanitary home, however, for there the garbage receptacles are covered, the home is screened and all precautions against the fly are taken.

A dirty and a clean backyard are contrasted in another exhibit. A child, dirty and unkempt is sitting in a yard piled with rubbish and litter. The other yard is covered with beautiful grass and a clean child is in it.

Hundreds of Posters

Other exhibits worthy of special mention are: The Health Land picture behind which is a vari-colored, ever-changing light; the model home, light and well ventilated, exhibited as the best cure for consumption: and the various exhibits of carbohydrates, protein, mineral and vitamine foods; the Garden of Health in which nourishing vegetables are growing.

There are literally hundreds of the posters: they are pasted around all the walls and are suspended on strings stretched across the halls. Care of the teeth, proper food, proper amount of sleep, evils of cigarette and coffee habits, and many other healthful suggestions are vividly portrayed through this medium. The posters were made by the children and some of them are entered in the prize contest.

The health stories written by the children are on display on one of the tables. These are composed from stories which Miss Marx has told the children and prizes will be given for the best.

A rest room for women and children who become fatigued while visiting the Exhibit is provided. A phonograph in the hall furnishes music for the entertainment of visitors. Dozens of women and children are there to do everything possible for the comfort and general welfare of the visitors.

"How did they do it?" is the question uppermost in every one's mind when entering the room and viewing the almost infinite number of exhibits. It is very evident that great care, patience and hard work were necessary to perfect such an elaborate and instructive display.

Most of the credit for the completed exhibit goes to Miss Marx whose untiring work is seen in every detail.

MRS. IDA CLYDE CLARKE GOES TO EXPOSITION IN SWEDEN

An item in the current number of the General Federation News concerning Mrs. Ida Clyde Clarke is of particular interest here, as Mrs. Clarke visited in Middlesboro last summer and was the guest of the Woman's Club at a dinner and at the Manring Theatre, where she spoke. The news article follows:

"Ida Clyde Clarke, president of the Woman's News Service, and associate editor of Pictorial Review, sailed May 29 for Sweden where she will be a guest of the Swedish government at the international exposition in Stockholm. She was accompanied by her son, Beverly Clarke, newspaper man and scientist. Mrs. Clarke was the only woman among a group of men writers, including Irvin Cobb, honored by the Swedish government."

MOONSHINERS FRUSTRATE OFFICERS, MOVE OVER STATE LINE

Efforts of Claiborne county officers to capture moonshiners and a distilling outfit near the Virginia line yesterday were frustrated by the owners of the still who moved it over into Virginia. Near the furnace which the officers found was evidence that a large quantity of beer and liquor had been poured out before the moonshiners fled.

UNUSUAL COINCIDENCE IN H. S. GRADUATES' NAMES

By Assosiated Press.

CINCINNATI, June 14.—The name of Joseph A. Albers, heading the list of graduates at both East and West Night high schools, baffled for a time the officials of the Cincinnati Board of Education. When secretaries tracing the apparent error called up the two principals, each was quite certain his own list was correct.

Investigation developed that there were two graduates named Joseph A. Alberts—one at each school, and that each headed the list of those qualified to receive diplomas. They are not related.

TO DISCUSS BUYING OF ATHLETIC FIELD

Mass Meeting at School Auditorium Tomorrow Night Called to Make Plans

A meeting will be held in the central school auditorium at 7:30 tomorrow evening for the purpose of formulating plans for the purchase of an athletic field. All persons interested in the project are invited to attend.

"There has been a great deal of talk about the athletic field," said Supt. J. W. Bradner, "but as yet nothing has been done. This meeting is for the purpose of putting the porposition before a representative number of citizens that we might take some action on the matter. We should like to have a large attendance at the meeting."

G. O. P. COUNTY CONVENTION IS CALLED JUNE 23

Thirty-Three Delegates From Bell Expected to Go Instructed Solidly For Dawson—State Convention June 26

WILL NAME PARTY CANDIDATES FOR STATE OFFICES

A convention of Bell county Republicans has been called for 1 p. m. Saturday, June 23, in Pineville, by Dr. J. P. Brashear of this city, Republican county chairman. Thirty-three delegates are to be named at this time to attend the state convention in Lexington June 26, when party candidates for governor and other state offices will be chosen and the party platform formulated.

The Bell County convention is expected to be unanimously for Dawson as gubernatorial nominee, and unless some entirely unforeseen circumstance arises, the convention will undoubtedly instruct a solid delegation to vote for the county's favorite.

Candidates to be nominated are governor, lieutenant-governor, attorney-general, auditor of public accounts, treasurer, secretary of state, clerk of the court of appeals, commissioner of agriculture, labor and statistics and the superintendent of public instruction, all to be voted on at the November election. Candidates for state senator and representatives where the party must choos between candidates, will be named at the state primary, to be held in August. No opposition is expected to Senator Moss or Representative Joe Bosworth.

All other counties in the state will hold their conventions Saturday. The delegates to the convention, by county and district follow:

APPEALS FOR MISSING SON BY NOTE IN FRUIT BOX

By Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, June 14.—A touching appeal for information regarding a missing son came into the hands of a Cincinnati woman who bought a box of strawberries at a local fruit store yesterday. In the box was a note reading:

"Good people, if you know anything about my son, Theodore Wood, please write to me. Mary F. Wood, Georgetown, Tennessee, Rural route No. 2, Box 60. Thank you. God bless you."

GINSBURG'S BIG ANNIVERSARY SALE DRAWS RECORD CROWD

Scores of persons had to leave Ginsburg's Anniversary sale without being waited upon this morning, so great were the crowds. Before the opening time, 9 o'clock this morning, a large crowd had gathered outside. When the doors were thrown open the place was literally overrun with buyers. Nathan Kohler, sales manager, says it is one of the greatest sales he has ever seen.

URGES RULES FOR DISPLAYING FLAG

Harding Says Americans Should Not Forget to Maintain Things For Which Flag Stands

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 14.—President Harding urged Amerien flag conference at its opening here today to adopt a code of rules and regulations for the proper display of the flag nd to include a provision that every American citizen should learn to sing the national anthem. It should not be forgotten, the President said, that American citizens have another obligation, "to maintain in America the things for which the flag stands."

The Oddfellows, at their meeting Monday night, refused to rent the building for more than one night to organizers of the Klu. They did not criticize the merits of the order but did not wish to evoke public disapproval by apprently sympathizing with the cause.

VALUABLE COLLECTION BOOKS RECEIVED AT LIBRARY HERE

One of the most useful collection of books ever procured by the Carnegie Library has been received there. The three sets are: Standard's lctures, fourteen volumes; Popular Science Library, seventeen volumes and Luther Burbank, eight volumes.

The lectures are on various cities and countries of the world, each book containing descriptions of two or three historical countries or cities. The Popular Science books include detailed and authoritative information on Physics, Anthropology, Botany, Electricity, Radio and many other subjects. Supplementing the descriptions of flowers, trees, vegetables and plant breeding in the Burbank books are many wonderful colored illustrations.

The library is a public institution and should buy the kinds of books that the public desires. In view of this fact, Mrs. T. D. Arnold, librarian, says she will ever welcome any suggestions from patrons concerning the kinds of books to purchase.

Delegation Headed by E. B. Clayton In Washington Today Asks Help In $3,000,000 Project of Southern Railway

ARGUES MATTER OF PUBLIC CONVENIENCE AND NECESSITY

By Associated Press

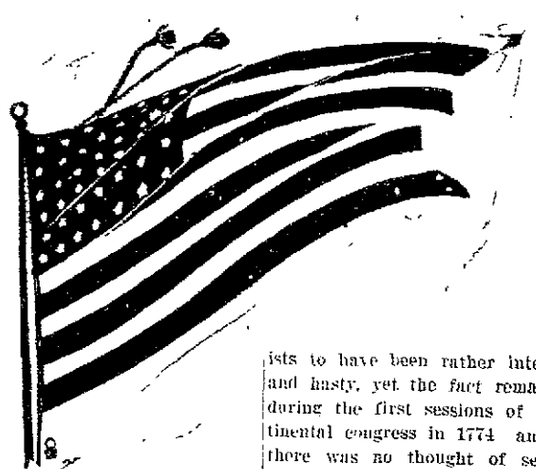
LOUISVILLE, June 14.—A Washington telegram to Times today says Kentucky's newest railroad project involving a three million dollars project to blast a way through the mountains to the sea for the passage of coal was brought formally to Washington today by a delegation from Harlan county. They appeared before the Interstate Commerce Commission in behalf of an application Southeastern Railway for the right to lay twelve miles of track in Harlan county and Lee county, Virginia. The delegation was headed by E. B. Clayton, secretary of the Harlan Coal Operators association and Perry V. Cole, banker. They were accompanied at the hearing by Representative John M. Robsion. The arguments, showing the proposed road was a "matter of public convenience and necessity," were presented along with other facts concerning finance.

BRAKES FAIL TO WORK, FORD CRASHES INTO POSTOFFICE

A Ford car of somewhat ancient design, driven by I. B. Dickey, cut some queer antics on the paved square at the rear of this postoffice building Wednesday morning, ending with a grand smash against the building. Neither Mr. Dickey nor R. P. Hutcheson who was standing a few feet away were hurt.

The driver who had received some packages from the postoffice was preparing to drive away. The Ford, exhibiting unusual tendencies for speeding, ran around the paved portion of the yard. The brakes, if it had any function, and the driver losing control of the car, it ran against the building at the rear doorway. Mr. Hutcheson had presence of mind to make a wild leap for safety just before the smash. The front part of the car was badly demolished.

American Flag Celebrates 140th Anniversary Today



By E. E. PATTON

Every civilized country in the world has a flag that in some measure typifies the country for which it stands. But it remains for America—our own United States—to have the most beautiful flag in the world. This flag, the joy and pride of all Americans, and the hope and benediction of all the down-trodden peoples of the earth, had its birthday one hundred and fifty-six years ago today.

The American colonies were content to use the flag of the mother country—England—until they found themselves unable to agree with some of the policies of their mother about taxes and a few other and lesser things, notably the right of representation in the British parliament, which they never asked of England. It is true that some of the colonies had their own distinctive colonial flags but they amounted to about as much as a state flag today.

The American colonies were loath to break away from England and while, perhaps, the English believe the colonists to have been rather intemperate and hasty, yet the fact remains that during the first sessions of the continental congress in 1774 and 1775, there was no thought of separation from Great Britain. John Adams has left us the statement that a man who would have proposed such a step at that time would have been very unpopular. Such was their fealty to mother England that their first flag was patterned after the English flag in use at that time. The stripes appeared on the flag in much the same manner as they now appear, but instead of the wonderful blue field bearing its constellation of white stars there were to be seen the crosses of St. Andrew and St. George.

This was the flag of our country when George Washington took command of the American forces under the famous elm at Cambridge and remained such until the 14th of June, 1777, when our present flag was adopted by solemn resolution of congress.

This resolution is an interesting thing and reads as follows:

"Resolved, That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternately red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

FIFTEEN CHINAMEN, CARGO OF SHIP ADRIFT OFF COAST, ADMIT KILLING CREW WHEN SKIPPER REFUSED TO LAND THEM IN U. S.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Fhen the British schooner Beatrice was found drifiting off Sandy Hook last night and brought into quarantine today, it was disclosed that its sole cargo was fifteen Chinese passengers who had killed the crew of four when the skipper refused to carry out his promise to land them on American shores from Havanna for one hundred dollars each. Through an interpreter it was indicated they had waged a desperate battle with the crew which killed five of the Chinese. All bodies were dumped overboard.

A THOUGHT

..As vinegar to the teeth, and as smoke to the eyes, so is the sluggard to them that send him. Prov. 10:26... .... ..

Slovenliness is a lazy and beastly negligence of a man's own person, whereby he becomes so sordid as to be offense to those about him.—Theophrastus.

LOCAL SENTIMENT AGAINST PROHIBITION

Since the repeal of the state prohibition law by Governor Al Smith of New York and subsequent acts in other states, the "wets" all over the country are beginning to clamor loudly against the rigor of prohibition enforcement and its cost to the state and municipal governments.

Here in Middlesboro groups of men are seen in public places, deploring the act of officials in even attempting to enforce liquor laws. They say that enforcement of the law will bankrupt the state and eventually, the federal government. Not many of them will frankly admit that they want the open saloons with their attending evils to return; a more effective method, they think, is to create a public sentiment against its enforcement which will finally lead to a repeal or modification of existing dry laws.

Many of these men are old residents who remember when open saloons corrupted Middlesboro, when murder and all forms of lawlessness were rampant. They speak of the revenue which poured into the public coffers from sales of whiskey, contrasting this condition with that of today when public funds are spent for enforcement of liquor laws.

These men, to call them citizens would be a misnomer, are not deceiving any one. They like whiskey and the evil atmosphere created by it. They are not interested in the expense of prohibition enforcement only to the extent that it deprives them of the means of further degrading themselves.

A whiskey sodden nation cannot endure and prosper. Clear-thinking, conscientious men and women have long realized this and have worked out the prohibition program through a half century of fighting for its adoption. Those who are deluded into believing that the whiskey interests are coming back into power, that the reign of the public bartender will shortly return, are seriously mistaken.

In the light of the progress Middlesboro has made since the passing of the open saloon, in consideration of the great moral, mental and physical improvement inhabitants this section who formerly got liquor from Middlesboro, it is actually incredible that any one could advocate such a return. The man who says prohibition can not be enforced means that he does not want it enforced and brands himself a traitor to his country. Prohibition can be enforced and the cleaning out of bootleggers in Middlesboro in the last eight or ten months is enough evidence to prove that it can if no more were available.

NATIONAL FLAG DAY

Today is national Flag Day. One hundred and forty-six years ago the stars and stripes were officially adopted by the Continental congress as the American emblem. Middlesboro, like other southern towns, has sadly neglected observance of this day which should rank next to the Fourth of July in popular celebration.

President Wilson, in his Flag pay address at Washington, June 14, 1921, ably and eloquently expressed the spirit and purpose of the American flag.

"This flag for the future is meant to stand for the just use of undisputed national power. No nation is ever going to doubt our power to assert its rights and we should lay it to heart that no nation shall ever henceforth doubt our purpose to put it to the highest use to which a great emblem of pastice and government can be put.

"It is henceforth to stand for self-possession for dignity, for the assertion of the right of one nation to serve the other nations of the world an emblem that will not condescend to be used for purposes of aggression and self aggrandizement; that it is too great to be debased by selfishness, that has vindicated its right to be honored by all nations of the world and feared by none who do righteousness."

The actual definition of the colors, as given by the Continental congress is: White, purity and innocence; Red, hardiness and valor; Blue, vigilance, perseverance and justice.

We are prone to forget the significance of our national emblem in the rush of our every-day life. Those who have ever been stranded on foreign shores and chanced to see an American flag know the feeling of patriotism, friendship and utter security it inspires.

Flag Day should be observed all over the country by the decoration of homes and business houses with American Flags, and certainly there should be a parade in which the "Star Spangled Banner" is played.

Kinks o' the Links
by "PRO"

Player in driving from the tee, addresses ball and then starts his swing. He has brought the club back and started his downward swing when the ball starts to roll from the sand on which the player has teed it. If the player completes his swing, but does not hit the ball at all due largely to the fact that the position of same had been changed when it rolled off the sand tee, is he charged with a stroke? Now for another similar situation. Suppose the ball starts to move as the club almost reaches it, and the player completes the swing striking the ball while it is moving and is able to get off a long ball is there any enalty for hitting the ball while it is miving?

If the player completes his swing at the ball and misses it because it has rolled from the tee, he is charged with a stroke. The fact that the player completed his swing puts the ball in play and prevents him from lifting the ball and teeing it again. The ball must be treated as if driven from the tee. In the other case where the player strikes the ball as it is rolling from the sand tee, the stroke counts and there is no penalty for hitting the ball while it is in motion.

In match play what is the proper manner of deciding the winner if at the end of 18 holes, the number agreed on by the two players the match is all even." How is a tie for first place settled in a medal round?

In match play if it is "all even" at the end of the number of holes agreed on hole by hole until one wins a hole. That immediately decides the match. In a madal round, if two players tie for first place, they must play the entire round again, at a time agreed on by those in charge of the tournament.

FOOLS
❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ By Berton Braley ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

The wise men said, "Why, the world is flat!
Our fathers' farhers have taught us that;
And all experince goes to show
That what our fathers have said is so.
It's only fools who would dare allege
That one could sail o'er the ocean's edge."
But the fools—the fools—let the toxin sound it—
Sailed to the blue-sky's edge—and round it.

The wise men said, "It is all a dream.
That anything can be done with steam.
The wise men said, "He's a fool for fair
Who thinks we ever shall ride the air."
But the fools believed, and the fools held true
To their foolishness, till they saw it through;
And a fool must follow his natural bent
So now we swoop through the firmament.

The fools, the fools! how they loom in sight,
Galileo, Columbus, Wright.
Watts and Stephenson pioneers
Conquering nature, charting spheres!
And ever the wise men learning naught
Jeered the aims and the ends they sought,
In the teeth of all of the creeds and schools,
Man is led to the height by Fools!

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO SYDNEY CARTON

DEAR SYD:

What was that somewhat melodramatic couplet that runs something like this -

"The sins ye do two by two Ye pay for one by one."

I am not good at quoting poetry, Syd, but as an opening to this letter those words will do very well.

To come to the point, day before yesterday a special messenger brought me a note to the office from Paula. In it she told me that she was in great trouble and must see me at once.

She asked me to come and see her that evening. Of course that was out of the question, but her letter was so ambiguous, it told so much and yet so little, it told so much and yet so little that I am frightened out of my wits.

Fortunately Alice Hamilton, Leslie's sister, is leaving this week for England and her father and mother will visit New York for about a week at this time. I had said nothing to Leslie about going because, honestly Syd, I did not not feel as though I could afford that fifty dollars or so that I should have to give Leslie if she made the trip. I could not let her go down there with no money although I knew of course Mr. Hamilton would pay all expenses after she arrived.

When, however, I got this message from Paula, I knew it was up to me in some way to sent Leslie out of the city until some arrangements were made with Paula whereby she would relinquish any claim she had upon me and give me back those letters.

After all I have said about a man writing compromising letters to a girl, to think I would do this thing myself! But she led me on, Syd, she led me on. Every time I would try to go her one better, when she said something sweet, I grew quite proud of my d—n literary attainments.

I've had my lesson, Syd, and if I get out of this, I'll never write another letter again to anyone, not even my wife.

Of course I felt like a yellow dog with a stumpy tail and a lop ear when I went home that night and offered to send Leslie to New York. The poor child said she was afraid to ask me for the little money needed because she thought that I could not afford it.

My God, Syd! What scoundrels all men are. I do love Leslie—love her better than any other woman that I have ever known, and really and honestly I wouldn't care so much about Paula if did not think that any scandal might hurt Leslie.

Besides, Syd, I'd hate to have her lose her truse in me. However, thank God, she isn't a woman who stops to analyze much. She takes whatever I say and whatever I do as the thing that it is right to say and do.

That was one of the things about Leslie that first endeared her to me. never contradicted.

Please come up Syd, for three or four days while Leslie is gone and help me out of this mess. I would do as much for you for I feel that I never can look Leslie in the face again unless I can do it squarely with all my past behind me.

Enclosed find Paula's letter.

RESTLESS

I get tired of the same old house
And the same four walls.
I grow weary of familiar halls
And of clodding down known stairs.

I like to change my quarters now and then.
I like to change my aspect and my clothes
And feel foreign to myself
And hard for friends to recognize.

But if you will inquire for my soil
You yill find it
Always at the same address.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Vegetable Salad

For this salad, which is so pleasing in the summer, use any combination of vegetables which you have, always with an eye to color. For instance, fresh cooked green peas, new carrots cut into thin slices, and potatoes cut in to large cubes, make a good mixture. Make a well seasoned dressing of oil, vinegar, salt, paprika, mustard and finely chopped onion. Pour a little over each vegetable and allow to stand in a cold place until time to serve.

Arrange on a platter, having peas in center, carrots at one end and potatoes at the other end of the dish.

Garnish with lettuce or watercress.

Do You Know Baseball?

by Billy Evans

Questions

ONE—What is construed as a wild pitch?

TWO—If the pitcher strikes out the batter, but he reaches first base because of a wild pitch or failure on the part of the catcher to hold the ball, is he credited with a strikeout?

THREE—is a player credited with a stolen base if he is allowed to advance without any effort being made to stop him?

FOUR—Can a player who has hit safely, and believes there is a chance that he may get to second run more than three feet out of the line as he rounds first?

Answers

ONE—A wild pitch is a legally delivered ball so high, low or wide of the plate, that the catcher is unable to stop it, and thereby permits a batsman to reach first or a runner to advance.

TWO—The pitcher is credited with a strikeout, regardless of whether or not the batsman is retired.

THREE—He is not credited with a stolen base unless a play is made on him.

FOUR—He can round first base as wide as he desires in order to make a good turn at the bag.

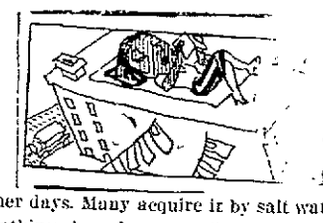
THE GRIST O' GOTHAM

BY CASUAL STROLLER

NEW YORK, June 13.—You are familiar, of course, with Long Beach, Brighton Beach, Coney Island beach, and others. Are you acquainted with Tin Beach?

Tin Beach is the most popular resort in New York. It attracts thousands of people. It is the cheapest, and the easiest to get to.

A rich tan shade is decidedly the proper thing in complexions these summer days. Many acquire it by salt water bathing, but there are thousands who must put in long days in offices and factories who would have to go about unfashionably bleached if it were not for the popularity of Tin Beach.



Sunday mornings the crowd is thickest. Go up on the roof of most any building in town and you will see the population out on the roofs reading, napping, sewing or idling. They're after that fashionable local color,

That's Tin Beach the roofs. And often there's more of a crowd than the seaside resorts have.

MIGHTY little community life exists in the Big Town. There are few points of personal contact. Here's an example:

Every now and then passersby see several small signs tacked to trees near the Prospect Park Plaza subway kiosk in Brooklyn. The signs advertise articles lost and found, giving addresses of people living in the vicinity. They figure the city is so big that they have more chance of reaching the neighborhood by this kind of advertising than of they depended on the big daily newspapers.

STATISTICIANS say New York is made up of people from small towns all over the world. Perhaps that's why public band concerts—ancient institution of the small town are popular. It's the open season now for band concerts in the new city bandstand on the Mall in Central Park. Edwin Franko Goldman's orchestra used to give concerts on the Columbia University campus but crowds became so large a bigger spot was necessary.

GREENWICH VILLAGE has more ghosts than any other section of New York. They're not ectoplastic ghosts, not the Conan Doyle kind.

In our best literary circles they are the people whose profession is known as "ghosting" that is, a struggling author hiring himself out at so much per word to write a book for somebody else to sign his name to. They have come in to fashion with the urge that has recently attacked about one in ten to write a book. Lacking tehenique or patience, anydbooy with the price can hire a Greenwich Village ghost to do the job.

One villager has written four travel books under four different signatures, and has three other contracts!

THE country long has been supposed more healthy than the city. Yet Health Commissioner Monaghan has issued a set of health hints to city dwellers planning vacations in the country!

"Those of us who live in the city," he says, "have been so accustomed to a pure water, milk and food supply that when we go to the country we are apt to become ereless. All doubtful water should be boiled. Don't drink milk right from the cow. It may not pure. Better pasteurize it by heating to the boiling point, let it cool off, and then put it on ice before drinking."

THERE is a promenade in the heart of New York's busiest section, where the pedestrian is absolutely sefe from traffic and there isn't a single store along the sidewalk. It is the stretch that runs through the middle of Longacre Square, just north of Times Square, from 43rd street to 47th street. This little right of way is guared by police posts and it's as safe and tranquil as any Main Street on a rainy Sunday afternoon. Yet few New Yorkers use it; they seem to urefer making a detour and plunglng through the crowds in negoriating this oblique intersecrion of Broadway and Seventh avenue.

SOMEBODY must have spread the word down south that New York laundries were cracking under the strain. The other day a couple emerged from Pennsylvania Station and started slowly up Eighth avenue, very wary of clanging traffic. The husband marched ahead lugging two great bundles of baggage, and behind came the wife, carrying her own washtub nicely done up in paper!

STORES are stocking up with tin pails again. Rushing the growler is coming into fashion since the state prohibition enforcement law has been repealed. Nobody seems to know where the beer comes from, but it's here.

BARGAIN hunting isn't confined to department stores. New yorkers do it buying theater tickets, too. The most congested bargain spot for theater tickets is a cut rate agency in a basement under a drug store in Times Square. Shows that are beginning to sag a little in box office receipts keep going, often for a considerable period, on cut rate tickets. Sometimes you can buy the pasteboards for just half the regular price.

THE STUDEBAKER LIGHT-SIX SEDAN

Where Quality Counts Above Everything Else

Quality is more important in an enclosed car than in most any other product in daily use.

Regardless of price, it is not economy to buy a makeshift job in which the quality is skimped and cheapened at every turn. Paint, imitation leather and fibre board too often cover serious structural defects and cotton-and-wool trimming cloths are short lived. The chances are that the buyer will more than pay the difference later—in higher upkeep cost, frequent repairs and excessive depreciation.

The price of the Light-Six Sedan is the lowest at which it is possible to obtain a substantial, high grade hardwood and steel body, upholstered in mohair, in combination with a chassis of proved dependability and performance.

Studebaker's South Bend plants build more high quality closed bodies than those of any other automobile manufacturer and consequently overhead costs are reduced and the price to the customer is low.

The in-built quality of the Light-Six Sedan is evident the moment one gets behind the wheel, and is appreciated far more after twenty-five or thirty thousand miles of service.

The Light-Six Sedan, with its sturdy four-door body, its improved L-head motor, and the excellence of its chassis, combines distinction of appearance with a reliability of performance, a degree of comfort and economy of operation unknown in any other car at anywhere near its price.

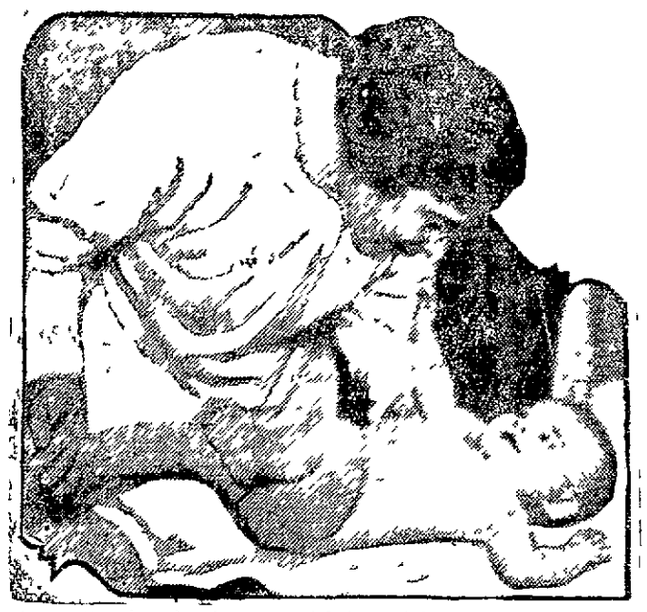
SUMMER CARE FOR BABY



BATHING

Baby should be bathed at least once a day, as a rule in a tub. During hot weather one or two extra sponge baths may be given but tub baths can be given more quickly and thoroughly and the baby is not so liable to take cold.

The room should be warm; an open fire is desirable in cold weather. The water should be comfortably warm but not hot; about 90 degrees F. to 95 degrees F. It may be tested with the bare elbow, never the hand. However, a bath thermometer is best.

Before baby is undressed every thing should be ready. In small white wicker basket should be a cake of pure white castile soap, a small bottle of olive oil and a roll of absorbent cotton. A clean wash cloth, clean towels and clean clothing should also be ready.

A large bath towel should be spread over the lap to prevent his tender skin from the rough or worsted dress and to receive him when lifted out of the tub. More conveniently he may be undressed on a table. Take his clothes off over his feet.

Use Little Soap

Before putting baby into the tub wrap him in a small blanket or large towel and wash his face, head and ears, being careful not to get soap into his eyes and mouth. Very little soap is needed and it should be thoroughly rinsed off. Put the skin dry with a soft towel, taking care to dry well back of the ears and in the soft folds of his neck. The eyes should be cleansed with absorbent cotton dipped in boracic acid solution.

The nose may be cleansed with an applicator made by twisting a small tuft of absorbent cotton in a round pad on the end of a wooden toothpick and dipping it in boracic acid solution. If made correctly the cotton will not slip off readily. Better ask your physician or the nurse how to cleanse the ears correctly or you may seriously injure them.

It is well to lay a bath towel in the bottom of the tub and put in only a small amount of water at first. A plunge into a tub of water may startle baby and he may never enjoy a tub bath. But if the water be added slowly while his attention is diverted he soon learns to enjoy the morning dip.

Dry Carefully

First soap the baby's entire body thoroughly, then place him in the bath holding him with the left forearm under the neck and shoulders, the left hand under his arm, and lifting his feet and legs with the right hand. Support him while in the tub with the left hand and arm. Soap his entire body with the right hand, then lift him out and wrap him in a soft bath towel. Dry carefully, patting the skin gently.

GOOD SOAP FOR TWO CENTS A POUND

Make It At Home By This Easy Process—Takes Less Than 30 Minutes.

Nowadays, more and more women are doing as their mothers did and are making their own soap If you have never tried it, you will be surprised to see how easy it is to make good soap soft soap, hard soap or floating soap, just by using kitchen scraps and waste grease together with a can of Merry War Lye, the safe and sure soapmaker.

In the old days when soap was made by the boiling process it took nearly all day to make a kettle of soap Now it is hardly any work at all—requires no boiling—takes less than 30 minutes. Saves you money and gives you all the pure, clean soap you need for kitchen, laundry and all household purposes.

You will find simple directions for soapmaking on the label of every can of Merry War Lye.

Merry War Powdered Lye comes in a convenient can with revolving sifting top that cannot come off, cannot get lost, recloses tightly and preserves contents. It is economical to buy and easy to use.

MERRY WAR POWDERED LYE

"Makes Mighty Good Soap"

Baby's Clothing Should Be Light and Comfortable

A little baby's skin is very tender and if he is handled roughly in dressing he will be made very uncomfortable. All clothing should be drawn off and on over his feet.

Baby's complete dress consists of a band, shirt, diaper, skirt, dress and bootees, none of which should be heavy or stiff. Add a little short jacket for cool mornings and evenings. When he is a few months old all his clothing may be taken off for a few minutes in the middle of a hot summer day and he may be allowed to roll and play on the bed.

Fancy garments have no place in a little baby's wardrobe For the first few weeks of his life he does little but eat sleep and grow. He needs many clean and very simple clothes. Starched garments and laces about the neck may irritate his tender skin and cause him much discomfort The irritations are sometimes hard to heal.

Clothing Needs

Baby should have three flannel abdominal bands of soft, white, unhemmed flannel, 14 to 18 inches long and 5 to 6 inches wide—wide enough to protect the abdomen and not wide enough to wrinkle They should go once and a half around, lap across the front, and pin at the side. After the cord is healed the first bands may be replaced by three knitted ones whose lower part is made of wool and their upper part of cotton. If made with shoulder straps and a tab to pin to the diaper they will not slip around baby's chest and make him uncomfortable. In hot weather all cotton or silk shirts may be worn. They should fit smoothly and may either lap or button in front.

Three pairs of bootees three pairs of merino or cashmere stockings (for cold weather) and three soft woolen blankets are required

Four dozen diapers, half 24- and half 30-inch square are convenient For the first few weeks, if the weather is not hot, 18-inch diapers will do Soiled diapers should be put into a covered pail of cold water to which borax has been added. Later they should be washed with pure soap, boiled, rinsed thoroughly (but not blued), soap and bluing are very irritating to baby's skin. So is urine; a soiled or wet diaper should never be re-used without being washed. Dry in the sun and press with a hot iron.

Other Clothes

Eight slips are required, six plain white ones and two "company" ones They every-day ones should be cut by a kimono-sleeve pattern, with a tape run through a facing about the neck and sleeves They may be 21 to 27 inches long, never more The "company" ones may have bishop sleeves and some embroidery; but set-in sleeves are hard to put on a little baby. Four light flannel skirts, cut princess style, should be worn under the slips

For cool mornings, baby needs three short kimono-sleeve jackets made of white flannel and closely knitted or crocheted. loose stitches or scallops catch on baby's fingers.

For sleeping, four nighties or sleeping bags of white flannel are necessary Draw tapes through the hem and the sleeves of the nighties will keep baby's hands warm Sleeping bags are made 33 inches long and 27 wide, opening and buttoning down the front. Baby can be changed without taking him out of the bag.

A wrap and hood for outdoor wear may be made like a sleeping bag of eiderdown or flannel At four months the corners may be opened to let out baby's hands, and when he begins to walk the bag may be made into a coat.

Touch all garments, particularly woolen ones, to the cheek to make sure that they are warm and dry before putting them on baby.

KNOXVILLE MAN GIVES ELOQUENT TALK ON FLAG

Urges American Citizens to Put Nation's Welfare Above Their Selfish Interests—Kincaid Made Road Ass'n. Chairman

LEXINGTON BOOSTERS TO VISIT HERE FEDNESDAY

An eloquent address on the American flag was given before the Kiwanis Club at their luncheon today, by E. L. McClurkan of Knoxville. I. B. Dickey was chairman of the meeting today. The attendance prize, given by the chairman was drawn by H. H. Overton.

In his address commemorating the birthday of the flag, Mr. McClurkan spoke first of the privilege of being born under the stars and stripes, pointing out that here was the emblem not merely of a nation, but of liberty and courage, and endless procession of men whose personality symbolized America. It is a star of hope, he declared, with elements of the divine, for the poor immigrant who through it learns self respect and love.

Then the flag is a source of hope and comfort, declared the speaker, bringing out effectively the peculiarly fitting circumstance that a woman, Betsy Ross fashioned the flag, "putting her own purity into the white, her innate sense of justice into the field of blue, the valor and courage of her sons into the red, and breathing into the finished banner the spark called life which every mother breathes into her child just before its birth."

Notwithstanding the breadth and wealth of our great nation, Mr. McClurkan went on to say, there is room here for only one flag, but others are being raised up in defiance of Old Glory. The political standard is often put above the stars and stripes in these days, he declared adding that the time had come for every American citizen to forget his parties and party issues and be an American. Then, he said, they would find many ills would be cured. Other flags, he showed, were being raised by labor and capital, industrial and economic standards that were often unpatriotic and unwarranted. He spoke in particular of the red flag of the communists, "the serpent of Bolshevism and anarchy, which will undermine our very government if we sit supinely by and let it grow."

"Any man who will not give his one hundred per cent support to the American flag ought to be kicked out of the country," he declared. "This is the time for stern measures. I am reminded of four planks I recently heard a man say should be in every political platform and there were: 'save or suffer, work or starve, play together or play hell, be an American or get out of the country.' We as Americans should pledge ourselves," he concluded, "that come whatever may we shall support this flag and give it into our sons' hands unsullied to the end that in the tomorrow they may live in a better nation than the one we live in today."

Several matters of business were taken up. A letter from the Cincinnati Kiwanis Club thanked the local club for their reception of the Cincinnati Good Will Party. A letter from the Louisville Kiwanis Club thanked the local club for its treatment of the Louisville bankers. A notice from the Lexington Boosters was read, announcing the visit to Middlesboro next Wednesday. The committee which received the Louisville Boosters was reappointed to welcome these visitors.

A letter from Miss Marx inviting the Kiwanis club to the health exposition at the central school was read. Announcement was made by Supt. J. W. Bradner of a meeting tomorrow night at the school building to discuss an athletic park. This is a public mass meeting to which all are invited. T. R. Hill seconded this invitation, urging all Kiwanians to take an interest in it.

Particularly important was a letter to Major . S. Helburn regarding his appointment as chairman of a good roads association in this county. Major Helburn wrote to the club that he could not serve and asked that they elect a successor for him. R. L. Kincaid was elected to this position. The letter to Major Helburn follows:

"The Central and Eastern Kentucky Good Roads Association, composed of the 62 counties forming the eastern one-half of the state, is now being organized for the purpose of advocating a state bond issue of $50,000,000 to complete the construction of the state primary system of inter-countyseat highways. It is believed that revenue can be provided for a sinking fund, the payment of the interest upon this bond issue and its final retirement in 30 years without additional taxes upon the people. In order to discuss this question a convention of this association has been called for July 19-20 at Lexington, and it is expected that there will be speakers from other states who have been connected with movements for similar bond issues. I have been named temporary president of this organization and Col. James Maret, the "Bone Way Man", temporary secretary, until the meeting at Lexington in July.

Our present system of piecemeal construction has not been satisfactory, and it is believed that the bond issue proposed is the only solution of our road problems.

You have been named as chairman of this organization in your county. A woman's committee of this association is also being organized, and we would like for you to name a member of this committee from your county.
